

TUBE-IN-TUBE HEAT EXCHANGERS

Heat exchangers are used for heating sludge before its recirculation into anaerobic digesters. The basic heat exchanger is a pair of concentric tubes; sludge flows through the smaller center tube, while water flows (in counterflow) in the annular space formed by the outside of the smaller pipe and the inside of the larger pipe.

convex is the sole agent of Progeco S.r.l. in Turkey.